

Fed Up with Rent Control Laws, Investor Builds Diversified DST Real Estate Portfolio

Overview:

Here is a hypothetical case study that describes a typical client who came to Kay Properties to escape the over-regulation of rental property ownership in Southern California.

1. Tom and Rebecca owned two-12-unit apartment buildings. They began to see how rent control laws and regulations were chipping away at their real estate's net operating income and eroding the equity they had worked so hard to create. They decided to sell.

2. The two at first considered investing in a NNN building, but were concerned about placing so much of their net worth into a single asset that would still require active management. They decided to enter a 1031 Exchange to defer capital gains.

3. The couple's CPA recommended taking a closer look at Delaware Statutory Trusts (DSTs) and advised that they contact Kay Properties & Investments who had an online marketplace of more than forty 1031 Exchange eligible DST properties from more than 25 different sponsor firms.

4. With Kay Properties' guidance, the couple completed their 1031 Exchange, and invested in a DST portfolio that included multiple asset classes, tenant types, and geographic locations. He a
